

STAR! WILL BROADCAST THE 2010 GRAMMY® AWARDS, TOGETHER WITH THE JUBILEE SHOW MY NIGHT AT THE GRAMMYS

The Grammy® Awards is the music industry's way of celebrating prominent achievements in music during the last year. Kicking off with the highlights from 50 years of Grammy® Awards and a main event with a packed schedule of all star performances, the Star! viewer will be guaranteed an award night to remember.

For the 52nd time the Grammy® Awards will take place, to celebrate the last year's stars in as different genres as pop, rock, jazz, hip hop and blues. No less than 109 categories will find their winners, and among the jury's favourites are Beyoncé with ten, Kanye West with six and Lady Gaga with five nominations. And speaking of Lady Gaga and Beyoncé, they are two of the many artists who will perform their latest hits. Also, Celine Dion and Carrie Underwood, together with a team of fellow singers, will perform a celebration to Michael Jackson. Before the 2010 Grammy® Awards kicks off at 22.00 Star! will broadcast the jubilee show My Night at the Grammys, with some of the highlights from 50 years of Grammy® celebrations. Viewers can expect goodies such as the 2004 duet piece by Prince and Beyoncé, as well as Natalie Cole's 1992 performance of "Unforgettable" set against a recording of her father singing the song.

The 2010 Grammy® Awards will be broadcasted Saturday February 13th at 22.00 on Star! My Night at the Grammys will serve as the warm up, starting at 20.30 the same evening.
